An HIV Prevention and Treatment Literacy Manual of this size and scope is the result of research, writing and input from many different people at Community Media Trust (CMT), as well as other organisations and individuals. We would like to acknowledge the following people and organisations that have contributed to the development and writing of this manual:

- The South African Department of Health, USAID, PEPFAR, John Hopkins Health and Education in South Africa, and SIDA for providing funds for Treatment Literacy.
- The Siyayinqoba Beat It! Production team who have worked tirelessly to produce the Siyayinqoba Beat It! HIV and Treatment Literacy DVD Series and organisations that fund them to do so - Global Fund, DFID, OSF (South Africa), HIVOS and EED.
- Polly Clayden, from HIV i-Base for the writing of the original workbooks that accompanied the DVD series.
- Nozipho Matyeni, Xoliswa Mtwetafa and Rose Smuts of The Caring Network for sharing their expertise and extensive knowledge on providing home-based care. The chapter on home-based care could not have been written without their guidance and comments.
- Fatima Hassan for sharing her extensive legal knowledge and making the chapter on Human Rights and HIV possible.
- Warren Parker from CADRE for his comments on Chapter 1 and for so freely sharing his expertise and knowledge.
- AIDS and Society Research Unit (ASRU) for allowing the use of material from the 'Mapping our Lives' Visual Body Map resource guide in Chapter 2. In particular, Fiona Mendelson and Colin Almeleh for their content development and Lyn Lamofsky for the illustrations of human anatomy.
- The CMT Outreach department for their feedback and ideas.
- The Treatment Action Campaign for their tireless campaigning that resulted in South Africans having access to ARVs.
